Making the jacket:

Sew the side seams to front and back pieces. Line the pockets, fold the facings and sew to the placements, working with a very tight hand stitch. Close the shoulders and sides. Sew the sleeve loops, right side to right side, rotate and place on top of the lower sleeves according to marking R; then baste. Make tailor sleeves without the opening. Join the two pieces forming the sleeve by the under arm seam, according to notches. Press the seam open to make it to give in. Close the elbow seam up to the base. Apply Fliselina following the shape of the sleeve base, on the wrong side; press. Mark the hem (base) and cross-stitch. Slightly gather the coup from the front notch to the first back notch and apply the sleeves to the armholes according to notches, distributing the gathers. Sew, trim the seam to 1.5 cm and hand whipstitch both fabrics together to get the desired shape; press using a wet cloth to gather up. Making the collar with facings: Apply Fliselina to the wrong side of the facings and one collar; press. Sew the facings, front, right side to right side, up to marking A. Match the facings of the base of the garment and place, right side to right side; sew around the same up to the end, front; fold the base and the facings in place. Join the collars, sew around the same (outside part); trim the seam; rotate and sew to the neckline according to marking A. Place the shoulder pad and line the garment. Hem the sleeves. Embroider the buttonholes; sew the buttons and button the sleeve loops up.
